Nordic Mensa Fund Call 2022

In 2022 the Nordic Mensa Fund will award a maximum of five “Article of the year” awards and a number of small project grants depending on the applications received. The following research areas are supported by the Fund: medical, psychological, sociological or educational aspects of intelligence and the human brain. The supported research needs to have a clear link to intelligence-related issues.

The nominated author or the main applicant must be affiliated with one of the countries involved in the Nordic Mensa Fund: Sweden, Finland, Norway or Denmark, either by nationality, residence or affiliation with a university based in one of these countries. The nomination/application must be made in English.

The nomination/application period starts on 25.05.2022 and ends at 01.10.2022. All Awards will be announced on the website of the Nordic Mensa Fund as well as directly to those awarded before the end of the year.

Article of the year awards, 1000€ each, max. five awards

Personal grant for nominated individual authors of outstanding published scientific articles that are related to the research areas supported by the Fund and are published after 1st January 2021. The article can be written in English or one of the Nordic languages.

Anyone can nominate an article. The nominator can also be the author of the article. The award will be given to the nominated author as a personal grant. Nomination can be made in English via the nomination form on the Nordic Mensa Fund web pages (under “Grants and Awards”). The justification should include the main findings of the article, its relevance to the science and how it is connected to the areas of the Nordic Mensa Fund.

Small project grants, up to 5000€

Small project grants can include travel grants for conferences where intelligence related research results are presented, projects aiming to communicate/disseminate the research results to the general public or research project related expenses.

Applications can be made in English via the application form on the Nordic Mensa Fund web pages (under “Grants and Awards”). The application should include a short description of the project, the amount applied for, a brief justification and budget, as well as contact information for a reference person who supports the application. The applicants must provide a short report to the Nordic Mensa Fund within 12 months of the award of the grant. The Nordic Mensa Fund may withdraw the grant if a report is not delivered.
